“The AIVP World Conference is remarkable in that it gathers ports and city representatives in the same place, providing an original and innovative forum to shape sustainable port cities. In this spirit, the Port of San Diego has chosen to support the 2025 edition of the conference as a Platinum sponsor.

Jason Giffen

Chief Sustainability & Innovation Officer
Port of San Diego

WHO WE ARE?

Founded in 1988, the AIVP is an international and non-profit organization committed to promoting dialogue and collaboration between cities and ports. Our mission is to facilitate the exchange of knowledge, support innovative projects, and foster international cooperation to meet the challenges linked to the sustainable development of port cities. The AIVP is nowadays the leading international platform for dialogue, expertise, and influence on these issues.

SEE YOU IN DUNKIRK, FRANCE, IN 2026!

As a pioneer in industrial and port decarbonization, Dunkirk, France, will host the 21st edition of the AIVP World Conference Cities & Ports.

Faced with climate challenges, the Dunkirk region has placed decarbonization at the heart of its development strategy. Its ambition: to become a large-scale demonstration site for the ecological transition, evolving from a high-emission region into a producer of solutions. This initiative relies on close collaboration between industry, Dunkerque-Port, the Dunkerque Urban Community, and all public and private stakeholders. It serves as a concrete case study, perfectly aligned with AIVP's vision, which positions city-port dialogue as a key driver of sustainable transformation in city-port regions.
